Creating a Play Console developer account

G ganapathirajangappan82@gm...

To get started, choose an account type

Who are you creating an account for? Learn more about which account type to choose

An organisation

Choose if you're creating an account for an organisation or business. You'll need to verify your organisation.

Organisation type
A nonprofit ▼

Get started →

Yourself

Choose if you're creating an account for yourself, and you don't currently have an organisation or business. For example, if you're an amateur developer, student or hobbyist. You'll still be able to earn money on Google Play and invite others to join your account.

① Some types of apps can only be distributed by organisations. Learn more

Link a payments profile to verify your identity

To create a developer account, you need to link a Google payments profile. If you don't have a payments profile, you can create one.

What is a payments profile?

Your payments profile is used across Google products, and saves you time by allowing you to manage your information in one place. Learn more

How Google Play uses your payments profile

A payments profile is critical to the creation and verification of a Play Console developer account. Google Play uses your payments profile to collect and verify your legal name and address. Learn more

Acknowledgement

I consent to Google showing this information on Google Play as part of my public Developer Profile. I understand that my Developer Profile and apps may be removed from Google Play if Google is unable to verify this information.

② Why are we asking this?

Your Play Console and Android experience

Providing this information helps us to better understand the Google Play developer community. Your answer won't affect the features and services that you can access in Play Console.

Website

Providing this information helps us to verify your identity

Other accounts that you've used

Some developers use multiple accounts to try and circumvent Google Play policies. To keep Google Play safe, you should declare any other accounts that you use to access Play Console.

Providing this information helps us to verify your identity and may reduce the number of verifications that you need to complete.
